The Bluffton Police Department is now accepting applications for the 2017 Citizen's Police Academy (CPA).

This is a unique opportunity for the public to learn what it's like to be a police officer. The 10-week course will focus on the history of police, traffic enforcement, radar operation, evidence collection, fingerprint recovery, defensive tactics, firearms and more.

"The goal of this educational opportunity is to increase the citizen's knowledge of our department and positively influence their perceptions of persons in law enforcement through transparency. The class is also beneficial for us because we receive feedback from the community into what they believe we do well and what we need to improve upon," said Bluffton Police Chief Joey Reynolds.

To apply, you must be 18 years or older, have a valid driver's license, and agree to a background check. Apply by visiting the Police Station located at 101 Progressive Street to fill out the application, or complete the application on the Bluffton Police Department's website at <http://www.townofbluffton.sc.gov/police-department/home>.

Please submit applications quickly, as there are limited seats in the class.
